Music
Gustav Holst – The planets

This was accidentally put on last week's overview. If you did this last week, enjoy doing it again as it is such a good piece of music!

Listen to the whole 49 minutes of Gustav Holst's 'The planets'. Each section of the music represents one of the planets and we will take a closer look at these in following weeks.

You can listen to it at the link below. You can also see on the video when the music sections change to represent another planet. Enjoy!

Questions to ask yourself:

What instruments can I hear?

How does this part of the music make me feel? (Tense, relaxed, excited, calm etc)

You may like to read or draw whilst listening.

Blogging

You may have started a blog on purplemash with your class teacher last term. If so, use this time to update and add to your blog. Spend at least 30 minutes adding to your blog. You could do so whilst listening to Holst's the planets.

If you haven't started one yet, explore how to set up a blog by using '2blog' on purplemash to do so. To get going simply search 2blog in purplemash and create a pupil blog using the green plus symbol. If you get stuck, you could email a friend or your teacher for some help.
